

Below are some notes re: the homepage drafts sent. As mentioned, these edits should help fine-tune the initial draft before sending it to Alex and other stakeholders. The versions are very similar: notes broadly respond to the overall design, calling out aspects of the different versions that work better.

Header nav - can links font be a touch bigger (desktop)?

"My Garage" is in the header - the brief removed from the homepage. "Email Alerts" is not in the header, let's replace it with this for desktop.

Example of Nav dropdowns (desktop and mobile)?

Font used in "Beverly Hills Car Club by Alex Manos" is a little too thick and tightly packed/pressed on desktop. Looks better on mobile.

Can "by Alex Manos" use a script font like in the logo?

Subheadline should be "The world's largest dealer of European and American classic cars."

Can hero image/video space (desktop) height be reduced? It takes up too much vertical space.

"Watch the film" - this was not in the brief.

"Featured classics" text slightly too tightly packed, also let's do 3 cars vs 6.

"Featured classics" car images are not cropped correctly.

Alex Manos editorial - this is too big on desktop, we want to condense this section into a single row that doesn't take more than a full screen amount of height. Provided photo of Alex in the dealership was not used, why? Also "Since 2008" is more accurate. Let's remove Read Alex's story and Hollywood reporter for now. Version 2 is better of these 2.

We Buy - Put a small text above the headline Sell Your Classic Car, then headline: We buy classic cars! Change the description text to: From a single Porsche to an entire collection — Alex personally reviews every car offered. This looks worse on mobile, boring, can't see image. We Buy is secretly the most important CTA of the homepage.

Testimonials + press - too much height on desktop, can quotes (desktop) be 1-2 rows max? Mobile looks better.

News and Events V2 is preferred. Why aren't you using actual/existing blog images so we can see this more realistically. V2 on mobile looks broken.

Remove the Los Angeles Since 2001 section.

Footer - Address is 4576 1/2 Worth St. Los Angeles, CA 90063. Business hours missing from the footer. Make the Email Alerts CTA text bigger and "Immediately get new inventory arrivals in your inbox."
